

Raindrop License Agreement
By Jan De Groot
<RaindropLicense@gmail.com>

Version 1.1 – February 2015

The Software is eligible for use, distribution and modification under the following conditions:

0. About this document

This document describes the rights granted by the creator(s) of the software linking to this document.

From here on out the creator(s) of the software will be referred to as "Author", a person who modifies the software will be referred to as "Contributor", and the software linking to this document will be referred to as "Software".

1. Attribution

The original Author(s) and all Contributors must always be credited as such. The same holds true of the company for which the Software is written.

Credit must be given, in each source file, in the following manner (without brackets, and the email address as an optional field):

-For Authors:

Author: {First Name} {Last Name} <{Email Address}>

-For Contributors:

Contributor: {First Name} {Last Name} <{Email Address}>

-For Companies:

Company: {Company Name} : {Country} <{Email Address}>

-For Contributing Companies:

Contributing Company: {Company Name} : {Country}
<{Email Address}>

2. Modification and distribution

The Software can be freely modified and/or distributed.

When distributing any part of the Software this license must always be included.

3. Liability

The Software comes with no warranty or guarantee(s) whatsoever. None of the Author(s) or Contributor(s) is liable for any damages by or behaviour of the Software. By using or distributing the Software you agree that the Software can exhibit bugs and/or can contain unmentioned and undocumented features.

4. Commercial use

4.1. General Rule

The Software may not be used for any commercial purposes. This includes, but is not limited to, selling the Software as a whole, selling the Software as a part of a product, or embedding advertisements into the Software.

4.2. Exceptions

An exception to this rule is the use of the Software in commercial environments, but only during the development cycle of a product or service, as long as it is not part of the final product or service.

4.2.1 Granted Permissions

The above conditions apply unless the Author(s) and Contributor(s) explicitly grant permission otherwise. Permission must be granted by each Author and Contributor individually to override these conditions. Once permission is granted for any type of commercial use, this must be made clear both in the source code, even when it is not redistributed, and to the end user.

Both companies and individuals are eligible for a commercial copy of the Software. The marking of this commercial copy in source code must be present in every source code file, under the Author(s) and Contributor(s) section in the following manner (without brackets):

-For Companies:

Commercial copy granted to: {Company Name} : {Country}
<{Email Address}>

-For Individuals:

Commercial copy granted to: {First Name} {Last Name}
<{Email Address}>

5. Linking to this license agreement

To link your software to this license agreement, a notice must be placed on each source code file applicable.

This notice must take the form (without brackets):

Copyright {year} under the Raindrop License Agreement V1.1.
If you did not receive a copy of the Raindrop License Agreement with this Software, please contact the Author of the Software.

6. Sublicensing

By modifying the Software you are granted the right to apply extra restrictions that build upon this license. Sublicenses may not, however, grant permissions that are, explicitly or implicitly, denied in this license agreement.
